THANK YOU

Largely through public generosity and community spirit, the cherished Cathedral Park Jazz Festival is surviving through its 32nd year. We enjoy the sustained relationship of many sponsors today. Be it a financial commitment or the barter of in-kind contribution, we want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your support.

The general public has been amazing. When word spread about the urgency of saving the festival, donations came flowing in through cpjazz.com. Not just that, but volunteers came out of the woodwork.

The musicians came together donating their performances at the TRANSFORMER benefit concert on May 30th. Without them, there is no festival.

The tremendous effort your Staff has given, donating countless hours and sleepless nights for the sake of keeping CPJazz alive, for free, forever. Thank You All.

The new team is committed to bringing CPJazz to the height of its potential, not only as a festival but as an organization. By forming a direct bond between the St. Johns community and the jazz scene, a synergy will develop and we hope that another thirty-two years will come to pass, only this time with expansion and increased diversity.

Under the umbrella of InterArts, CPJazz will incorporate independently by 2014 with a united Board of community members. A sustainability plan, to make it last, is already in the drafting stages.

St. Johns is evolving into a destination for entertainment. Our new vision sees potential for integration with St. Johns theaters, bars, cafes, and public spaces. CPJazz will always be a free concert in the park, but we can do more. In the next five years, CPJazz can introduce film, educational, and interactive presentations, rolled out in a week long program.

CLEAN UP

Portland Organic Productions will be performing a clean up of Cathedral Park from 10am-3pm, Saturday and Monday. We are very excited to enjoy the Jazz Festival while giving back to our community. This will be our first clean up with CPJazz and we look forward to helping in years to come!

PDXOP is promoting economic and social common good in St. Johns, with revitalization and beautification events. Volunteers clean up litter, graffiti, and invasive plants. PDXOP has plans to install murals and rainwater gardens in public spaces throughout St. Johns and the Cathedral Park neighborhood.

PDXOP is always looking for volunteers with a large range of projects, such as clean up events, mural installation, screen printing, grant writing, and reporting graffiti. We are currently seeking Board members who would be the right fit to support our Mission. If you would like to contribute to the success of PDXOP please contact us at Portlandorganicpro@gmail.com or by calling (503) 964-3428. For further information please go to facebook.com/PDXOP.

InterArts is a Community Production Company in the works. Since 2009, we have developed three festival programs, including No.Fest Music and Arts, and also MMMicrofest, an interdisciplinary happening for multimedia//movement//music. Now we're reshaping the tradition of CPJazz for the 21st Century.

In addition to community events, InterArts has plans to create a community production facility where members can enjoy access to the means of production ranging from audio/visual suites to office space, so that emerging artists and curators have a safe haven to experiment, convene, and collaborate. By developing our professional network, InterArts can thread our community together by providing distribution channels and facilities to create. For instance, you can propose and produce a documentary for submission to multiple community media outlets while working only through InterArts.

MISSION STATEMENT

InterArts is a professional network of producers, curators, and artists, grounded in the movement of art and daily living, responding to the need for sustainable, common good communities in our global society. As a production company, we present cultural events and provide an umbrella for new works by emerging artists that explore the boundaries between artist, audience, traditional and experimental, and encourage the adventurous in the fields of multimedia and education.

BACKGROUND

Cathedral Park Jazz Festival has been in the hands of St. Johns for thirty-two years. It was developed in 1981 to utilize the newly developed Cathedral Park. In honor of Howard Galbraith, local activists sponsored by the St. Johns Boosters put together the first annual Howard Galbraith Cathedral Park Jazz Festival. Sometimes called “The Mayor of St. Johns” for his activism and leadership in the community, Howard was partially responsible for the development of our great city park. Since then, the festival torch has passed several times, remaining the longest running jazz festival west of the Mississippi, always free and open to the public.

In thirty-one years, the event has always kept a local focus with hometown heroes like Nancy King, Art Pepper, LeRoy Vinegar, Dave Frishburg, and Darryl Grant, as well as outside talent including the late great Eddie Harris in 1994.

On May 11th, 2012, InterArts was selected by the former Cathedral Park Jazz Festival Committee to absorb the assets. For the first time in the history of CPJazz, artists were enlisted to restart the festival with a new program. With great hustle, a volunteer team formed and carried the torch with love for the event, the music, the park, and the St. Johns neighborhood.
